

Why are soft skills so important?

Soft skills are essential for both the organisation and the employee. Dr Steel (2018) explains that a team should work effectively by utilising soft skills like creativity and innovation with their technical skills. Dr steel (2018) adds that utilising soft skills effectively can help you advance your career because employers are no longer looking for “can you do this job?” but for “can you move beyond this job?”

In a work environment that is changing quickly, being successful means being able to cope with change. The reason organisations are successful is that everybody uses their technical skills and their soft skills all the time (Steel, 2018).
